The Circulation of The Bulletin.

The Bulletin has the largest circulation of any paper in Eastern Connecticut, and from three to four times larger than that of any in Norwich. It is delivered to over 2,000 of the 3,000 houses in Norwich, and read by nearly three per cent. of the people. In Windham it is delivered to over 900 houses, in Putnam and Danielson to over 1,100, and in all of these places it is considered the local daily.

Eastern Connecticut has forty-nine towns. One hundred and sixty-five postoffice districts, and forty-one rural free delivery routes. The Bulletin is delivered to every town and on all of the R. F. D. routes in Eastern Connecticut.

A TOKEN OF GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

If every citizen read the newspapers the census enumerators would have less trouble. It is not the intelligent citizen who makes the work of the census takers hard, but the man who is ignorant of the government's business and his own duty.

The papers have printed columns of good advice to readers together with the full list of inquiries that readers might prepare themselves to answer, thus saving time for themselves and the enumerators.

These men are armed with all the power of the government for the collection of facts which the government regards of importance to it; and the citizen who understands that it is for the well-being of the government and the community in which he lives that the government should have this information is glad to give every detail and give it accurately.

The canvassers are men of intelligence and tact and they deserve to be well received and courteously treated. Only the grouches and the ignorant make the business disagreeable, and these are too common to need reinforcements.

The glad hand and a smile are not guaranteed to the men who serve the government; but as they cost nothing and lighten the enumerator's toil it is a token of good citizenship and brotherhood to do our prettiest on this occasion.

THE COST OF THE STRIKE.

At the expiration of two months of disorder and discomfort Philadelphia is glad to have the strike declared off and a new start made for orderliness and efficient public service.

The cost to the 4,000 strikers was $2,000,000 and to the Rapid Transit company $2,750,000; and the loss to trade is estimated at $5,000,000, making a total loss of $12,000,000, or an average loss of $300,000 a day for the entire time.

These figures show clearly that a big strike operates heaviest against the innocent and unoffending public; and the truth is that the evil effects upon a city are more difficult to overcome than the injury to the company or to the men whose difference of opinion and bad blood are at the bottom of it.

The Philadelphia Times, viewing the result, concludes that "the prospects are for an indolent period of peace and, while there is no means of recovering the enormous losses sustained, the surest way to minimize the hardships suffered and to restore conditions to normalcy is to forget the strike."

"Its lessons to the parties at interest are sufficiently clear as to need no comment, and the general public must be impressed with the fact that, judged from the experience of the last eight weeks, a strike is not only to be regretted as a means to an end, but to be averted, if at all possible."

SOLID FOR BETTER CONDITIONS.

The fact that the house of representatives at Washington has passed a national corrupt practices act with only one dissenting vote, indicates that the members recognize that the time is ripe for reform in political methods. This new law compels the public to know of their accounts by all organizations engaged in influencing public opinion at election time. "Of course, party organizations and campaign committees and candidates are especially aimed at," remarks the Waterbury American, "but it is possible that organizations which are trying to influence public opinion to bring pressure to bear upon congress, like the Rivers and Harbors committee, the American Federation of Labor, conservation societies and even newspapers, might have to show what money they have received for their work and how they have expended it. If the senate passes the bill at all it will probably eliminate the ridiculous features of it."

This may be one of the bold measures the house ventures to pass, because it is aware the senate will kill it. Legislative bodies have such easy ways of playing with one another that the game of politics isn't half as serious as it looks more than half the time.

The time may come when the government will require a photograph of every spinster and bachelor in the country. That would require expert snapshot artists.

A man usually level headed will get upset over the tale of a comet, just as a good horse will lose his head over an unearthly sound from an automobile horn.

When a couple 75 years old elope and get married it is well enough to lay it up against the influence of the comet, if no better reason can be found.

A THREE-CORNERED UNDERTAKER'S WAR.

Chicago deals so much in novelties that it does not seem strange to learn that it now has on foot a three-cornered undertaker's war which is showing up how the people are robbed in the hour of their bereavement.

Undertaking at the edge of the grave, according to statements being published there, is an everyday matter, and a death in a workman's family means a debt it often takes years to overcome.

A recent case tried there has excited while interest. The jury in the city court cutting in two the charge of a Kenwood undertaker on the testimony of W. E. Gerry, general manager of a concern which has cut out the middlemen, the Western Casket and Undertaking company. One casket that cost $3.50 was billed to mourning relatives at $400, according to the admission under oath of the undertakers.

The officers of the undertakers' association are indignant at the prices are cut and advertised and declare as out the ethics of their profession are being violated.

The city club's committee of inquiry was called to probe this case. The committee is expected to make a very interesting report upon May 2d.

This shows that the war now being made on high prices knows no limits.

NOTHING GAINED.

The efforts to enforce the Sunday law at Middletown have not been very successful. In a resume of the things that the mayor and council have done and haven't done, The Sun says: "It has also taken the morals of the community in hand, and enforced the so-called blue Sunday with signal success. It brought about the arrest of James Bravakis, a local candy store man, for selling ice cream on Sunday. Bravakis being fined one dollar, appealed to the superior court. The jury disagreed and was discharged. The state of Connecticut is still on the map."—Norwalk Hour.

Tals conduct on the part of the jury makes ice cream come high, but Middletown has no reason to complain, since her representatives decline to honor the law. This not only "shows Middletown the map," but also that Middletown regards an ice cream Sunday as being good enough for her whether spiritual or legal, or not. We have admitted that the ice cream and Sunday is not the worst sort, but it would be well to respect the law until it has been amended or repealed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

When a whiskey war is declared, no drum and fire are in order to attract attention to it.

The census enumerator finds that a man's home is his castle oftener than he cares to.

The claim is made now for football that if the managers will pad the gridiron all will be well.

The smoke nuisance and the spitting nuisance are more closely allied than some folks think.

The fact that Senators Aldrich and Hale are about to farewell does not create general excitement.

Texas is reported to have lost $5,000,000 this year. Now Bibles ought to be in better demand there.

If a volunteer party should go to the North pole, it is not probable it would find any traces of Peary or Cook.

Happy thought for today: Man hopes for the best, but the man who gets it usually makes a grab for it.

There are a hundred different kinds of breakfast foods, and few men can pass on the merits of a dozen brands.

Colonel Bryan does not intend to start a prohibition paper. Two papers on his hands at once would be too much.

Roosevelt is trying to see Europe, but Europe is so intent upon seeing him that he is having a high old time at it.

A Chicago judge has notified the police that respectable jags should be escorted home. The jags should give thanks.

In some Massachusetts towns Patriots' day was utilized as a clean-up day. Cleaning up a town is a patriotic service.

If an account should be kept of the number of any one how seldom the census enumerators were invited in to dinner.

The woman who burned her husband's wooden leg to prevent his going out at night, forgot how cheap crutches are.

Commander Peary's Florodora North pole jags in Hampton's Magazine look as if they were trained to become a magazine exhibit.

A Vermont suffragist who was at Washington is given a column in the Rutland, Vt. News to continue the hiss at Taft. What a goose!

Jim Hill gives notice that the year 1910 will show up a nine billion dollar crop. He is holding his apron for some of that wealth now.

Sorrows of a Son-in-Law. Representative Nicholas Longworth is relating to his colleagues in the house a pathetic tale which he calls the "sorrows of a son-in-law." Mr. Longworth declares that ever since the announcement of his engagement to the daughter of President Roosevelt he has been a son-in-law. He has been assumed to have been inspired by Mr. Roosevelt. When the colonel went to Africa, however, Mr. Longworth expected to get credit for at least a little originality, but he admits his hope was baseless. He has just received a letter which reads, in part: "Whenever you get off anything worth saying, which is mighty seldom, we all know it is inspired by your distinguished father-in-law, and most of your constituents consequently read on the colonel's very early return. When he lands on American soil you may expect to read your speeches, but in the meantime you might as well save yourself the trouble of making them." Mr. Longworth submits that the public life of the son-in-law of a great man is hardly worth the living.—Tribune special.

NEEDLEWORK SUGGESTIONS.

Paris Transfer Pattern No. 8164. Lingerie hat. This design for eyelet and French embroidery may be transferred to linen, lawn, cross-barred muslin, or batiste, and embroidered with fine cotton floss. After embroidering, let the hat dry in a frame, lined with ruffles of narrow lace or chiffon and trimmed with bows of ribbon.

Price of pattern 10 cents. Order through The Bulletin company, Pattern department, Norwich, Ct.

Paris Transfer Pattern No. 8164. Lingerie hat. This design for eyelet and French embroidery may be transferred to linen, lawn, cross-barred muslin, or batiste, and embroidered with fine cotton floss. After embroidering, let the hat dry in a frame, lined with ruffles of narrow lace or chiffon and trimmed with bows of ribbon.

Price of pattern 10 cents. Order through The Bulletin company, Pattern department, Norwich, Ct.

Paris Transfer Pattern No. 8162. Dutch collar. The design is to be transferred to linen, lawn, or any material to match the waist, if so desired, and the embroidery should be in a harmonizing color. The collar is buttonholed before cutting out.

Price of pattern 10 cents. Order through The Bulletin company, Pattern department, Norwich, Ct.

FASHIONS AND FADS. Linen coats are "finger length" and more closely fitted to the figure than last season.

Taffetas in checks and stripes are more favored for contrasting colored linings of coats.

The silk prospect is bright, and bright colored costumes are predicted for the summer season.

Paris sanctions lace-trimmed white straw hats, and they will be seen in numbers at the season.

The ornamental scarf is fringed and embroidered, and is most frequently made of coarse meshed silk net.

Small chiffon and mousseline fans are polka dotted over the entire surface on both sides with silver sequins.

Dainty French slippers are made with many straps over the instep and liberally decorated with jet or crystals.

Deep cuffs of the pattern known as gauntlet finish some of the newest shirtwaist sleeves, the rest of the sleeves being on the long puff or bishop order.

Shantung, rajah and a new Chinese silk, which is part silk and part linen and has a rich looking surface, will be employed for the spring Russian costume.

To form a lovely frame for the picture, hat Parisiennes now carry a teapoonful of lemon juice over each apple (any extract can be used if you haven't the lemon juice). Keep about one-half cup of water in pan all the time they are baking. When apples are done remove them from the pan and add one-half cup of sugar to the syrup and let boil just long enough to thicken with four ounces of jam. May be served hot or cold.

Breakfast Biscuit. Take one quart of flour, two teapoonfuls of cream of tartar, one of soda, one of salt, one-half cup of lard. Mix as for any biscuit. Roll out on the board and spread with lard and knead in and roll out again. Repeat this until it is quite short, then roll out and spread with melted butter and sugar and cassia and roll up in as small a roll as you can, cut in pieces two inches long and bake in a quick oven. This is very nice when anyone is tired of plain bread.

Apples for Salad. If apples to be used for salad have little flavor, sprinkle them with lemon juice, cut up, with a goodly amount of lemon juice to which a few cloves have been added. At the end of half an hour add the mayonnaise. It will be a decided improvement.

Unique Buttons. Among the smart buttons shown this spring are those of steel set in colored stones. These buttons are mounted in mother-of-pearl rims, matching the stones in color.

Sponge Cake with Two Eggs. Put in the mixing bowl a pound of flour, three-quarters pound of sugar, a cupful and a half of milk and two eggs. Stir five minutes and add a quarter of a pound of butter just melted. Stir to mix thoroughly. Grease a round or oblong cake pan and line with paper cut to fit. See that the fire is made up to heat an hour without replenishing and the oven so that it will brown flour in four minutes. Then add two rounded teapoonfuls of baking powder and mix rapidly and thoroughly. Pour into the prepared pan and bake in the oven immediately. It will take an hour to bake. Don't open the oven door for 15 minutes. Don't slam the door at any time, for this will cause the cake to collapse. Before removing from the oven, see if the cake is done by inserting a broom straw carefully in the center. If it comes out clean, the cake is cooked.

A List of Puddings. Here is a list of puddings with which sauces go well: Hot Puddings: Steamed or boiled apple pudding or dumplings; apple or cream tapioca; baked or boiled batter pudding; bird's nest, brown Betty, caramel, custard, steamed or boiled cherry pudding and dumplings; puddings and dumplings made of all the different sorts of berries; chocolate, corn starch, cottage, cranberry, date, plum, pudding, coconut bread pudding, rice, fig, graham, Indian, lemon, peach, rice, noodle, oatmeal, orange, peach, pudding, pineapple, raisin, rice, spice, stale cake pudding, rhubarb, strawberry and dumplings, strawberry cottage pudding and sweet pudding. Cold Puddings: Cream, tapioca, bread custard, chocolate, baked cup pudding, English cream pudding, lemon, rice, lemon, peach cream pudding, coffee custard, blanc mange and tapioca custard.

Collecting Lids. A nerve specialist has advised the collector's aid as a cure for sick nerves. He is not particular what is collected, so long as his patient has the habit hard enough to take her mind from herself.

A new and curious form of collecting is not lids. The lids generally collected belong to receptacles that contained potted meat, which were interestingly decorated in the early Victorian era with landscapes, views of historical places or copies of paintings.

Lids of pomade pots are also included and the tops of ginger jars. The coloring of these antiques is good and the prints interesting.

This collecting is so new that so far it is not especially costly. The lids are mounted in circular frames of wood or velvet and form an effective decoration to a plate rail.

Old Raincoats Useful. Do not consign your worn-out raincoat to the waste bag.

Strip of an old silk raincoat that which would demand too much of the expensive old silk, and the waterproof cloth of light weight than the old cloth, which you probably would purchase.

An apron with a bib can be made for wash day. A large enveloping cap for the hair will protect from water when windows are cleaned.

Strips of an old silk raincoat can be worked into bags to carry next year's bathing suit, and the pieces left over can be made into little utility cases.

A Summer Saving. A summer saving is to use your clothes wringer as a mangle.

Sprinkle towels and such pieces of linen with a little lemon juice, and let very carefully lengthwise, laying pieces over each other, with hems graduating, about nine thicknesses. Put through wringer, working softly back and forth between hems, as it wears clothes and wringer too much other ways. Take out, fold each towel as you wish, take one by one through wringer back and forth until stiff; dry on clothes horse. I give even napkins this treatment, only afterwards touching the initials on wrong side with hot iron.

A Recipe for Dandelion Wine. Take two quarts of dandelion flowers and four quarts of boiling water, pour through a cloth, then add four pounds of sugar and the juice of two lemons and two oranges; put in a jug and let ferment for six weeks or till perfectly done. Pour over a buttered quart to fill up the jug every day so that the jug will be full every day.

When done remove them out, clean the jug and put back or put in bottles. This makes a wine equal to champagne after standing six or eight weeks.

A Good Supper. Take six slices of pork and fry very brown. Pour all the fat out of the spider except a teapoonful. Pare six apples and slice very thin. Put them in the spider and one-half cup of water. Cover them over and let cook about 15 minutes, stirring frequently. When done, like apple sauce, remove from the fire and sweeten to taste with molasses. Serve hot with baked potatoes.

HOME GARMENT MAKING. The Bulletin's Pattern Service.

LADIES' DRESS. Facts Pattern No. 3323—All Seams Allowed.

Two of the most fashionable features of the season are prominent in this effective costume, one being the over-blouse with sleeves cut in one with the body portions, and the other is the fitted skirt with a draped effect at the waist, and the design is one that can be employed to advantage for the new velvet effect of the transparent material being used for the over-blouse and tunic. The latter portion is discontinued each side of the double box-plait, which drapes the skirt as the back. The over-blouse is back closed and it will be noticed in slightly gathered at the waist. Dark green is a close adjustment to the tunic over the hips. In the present instance the dress is made of rosewood colored shantung, with darker touches to blend the blouse.

The pattern is in five sizes, 34 to 42 inches bust measure. For 34 bust the dress requires 3 1/2 yards of material 36 inches wide. For 36 bust the dress requires 4 1/2 yards. Give accurate measurements.

Price of pattern, 10 cents. Order through The Bulletin Company, Pattern Department, Norwich, Conn.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY. Add a few drops of carbolio acid to an ounce of rosewater and givern and use it for removing fruit or vegetable stains.

For the baggy appearance under the eyes rub gently with the tips of the fingers dipped in alcohol. Afterward massage in the same way with cold cream.

Where one has a bad throat a soothing drink can be made by bringing a pint of barley water to a boil, then add one ounce of the best gum arabic and stir until dissolved. Take but a little at a time. It will stop a rasping cough.

The overcoat woman, dreams hill-climbing desperately and never does it, though it is the best sort of a reducer. When she finds herself gasping for breath from the exercise she will turn and walk back a few steps the pressure on the heart and lungs will be at once reduced and she can go on with comfort. This is a well-known rule of the army, where steep heights must often be taken in double-quick time.

Maple Coconut Squares. Put in a kettle a scant cupful of maple syrup and a teapoonful of butter. When it boils add a grated coconut and cook over a slow fire until done, which will be when it hardens if dropped in cold water. Pour on a buttered marble slab or in a buttered pan, and when hardened sufficiently cut into squares and wrap in paraffin paper.

Mrs. Margaret Cox, 181 West Main Street, Norwich, Conn., says: "My son procured Doan's Kidney Pills for me from N. D. Sevin & Son's drug store and their use proved of great benefit. I had been miserable for some time from disordered kidneys. Mornings when I arose my back was so painful that I could scarcely straighten and at times I could not do anything. Trouble with the kidney secretions also bothered me, the passages being too frequent. I was subject to dizzy spells, and more than once came near falling on this account. My face bloated and there was also a perceptible swelling of my feet and hands. I tried various medicines and doctored a great deal, but nothing gave me any relief. I was about discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but I had only taken a few doses before I had reason to place great confidence in them. The use of one box put an end to all lameness in my back, restoring my health and benefiting me in a general way. It gave me pleasure to tell other persons of the curative powers of Doan's Kidney Pills."
